Honolulu, August 1, 1887. 1177 4

Hawaiian Gazette

EST. 1838 IN REGUS.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 2, 1887.

Our correspondence from the other islands shows that the native and foreign voters are working harmoniously in selecting candidates for the new Legislature. There is no time to be lost in the preliminary work of securing the best men, and all should bear in mind to give the Hawaiians a fair and equal chance. Where competent native Hawaiians can be found to sit as nobles or representatives, they should be nominated and elected!

THE PLANTERS' MONTHLY for July has been laid on our desk, and as usual is brimful of choice reading for all engaged in agriculture. On the first page the timely publication of the officers and committees of the Company has been made, for as the month approaches in which the annual meeting is to be held, it is necessary that officers and committee-men should be ready with their special work. The leading editorial on "The Future of Cane Planting" contains useful suggestions as to how this business may be profitably carried on. Two articles of really valuable information to planters will be found under the heads of "Diffusion Tests," and "Expenses and Production of Cuban Central Sugar Factories." The former article is a criticism on Prof. Wylie's arguments for the manufacture of beet sugar, he being an enthusiast in this matter. We believe with him that the day is not far distant when beet sugar will be a large industry in the United States. But we must refer our readers to the periodical itself.

The account received from Samoa relative to the goings on of Minister Plenipotentiary Bush and the Kaimiloa, is not one calculated to make Hawaiian citizens take kindly to the money which has been poured forth upon that useless mission.

As far as we can learn the behavior of Bush has been a disgrace, and on his return the whole details of the mission should be laid before the public.

The Kaimiloa has also done her share in adding to the glory of the Kingdom by having a number of her crew locked up in the calaboose for drunkenness and rioting, while there had been the usual mutiny shortly after arrival.

Before the news had arrived of the political changes here, Bush had taken the Kaimiloa to sea, on a cruise, accompanied by a number of Samoans, and she has not since been heard of.

Such in brief, is the news from Samoa, and it is to be hoped that the orders have, ere this, been received, and that the whole of this disgraceful affair may be closed up for good. There will be a very unpleasant aftermath though.

So the Hawaiian youths abroad have been ordered in many cases, to return home. It was about time that a change should be made. The most scandalous case of the whole lot was that of Wilcox. He is now about thirty-six or thirty-seven years of age, and has been living at public expense since August 19th, 1880. He has certainly had a long enough pull at the public purse, and it is about time that the young man should go to work on his own account. Whether the education he has received is likely to stand him in good stead here, is extremely problematical. The days of military fallahs are at an end in Hawaii; and what we want are men who are prepared to do practical work.

If Mr. Wilcox and several other of his confreres are ready for that, there is an excellent opening for them here, if not, they had better see what they can do by entering the military or naval professions in the countries where they have studied them.

The Government have certainly made a good start, and we trust that they will continue in the same good groove. Hawaiian youths ought to be well educated, but they ought to be youths chosen for their attainments and not through favoritism. The proper thing to do would be to put the distribution of such prizes under the Board of Education.

The Queen has returned and what have we to show for the expenditure of how some thousand dollars? Very little indeed. Her Majesty has been handsomely treated by the Government of Great Britain, as was to be expected, but what particular advantage will be reaped by this country? It is no doubt a very pleasant thing for both sovereigns of this country to have a personal knowledge of European sovereigns, but it is the people who have to pay for the expense of travelling, and it is they who have a right to complain if the expense incurred is laid out for a useless object. The trip, of course, was one of those unfortunate expenses which the Gibson Government entailed upon the country. Her Majesty was quite rich enough to pay the expenses of her trip, and if she desired to go to the Jubilee, she should have paid for herself. The whole affair was an outrage upon the taxpayers, and the GAZETTE enunciated that opinion when the Queen and her party started. While our roads were in a frightful condition, our outstanding debts unpaid, we have had thousands of dollars thrown away upon half a dozen officials who are all drawing handsome salaries. Such a junketing trip is not likely to happen again. By the way is the report true that $5,000 had to be borrowed by the Royal party to bring them home?

It will not be necessary to publish the details of the libel suits against the GAZETTE which have lately been tried before the Supreme Court. The charge made was for libel, contained in an item published only in an Extra Edition, issued on the first day of July, giving an account of the mass-meeting which was held on the day previous, in which the Hon. J. S. Walker and F. S. Pratt were charged with having carried off public documents from the Government House. This item was printed and circulated without having been seen or read by either the editor or the publisher, until after the edition had been circulated. As soon as it was seen by them an apology was made, which was accepted by Mr. Walker as ample reparation; but it was not accepted by Mr. Pratt, who brought action for libel. The suit against the editor was tried before a jury, who acquitted him of all blame in the publication referred to. The suit was then entered against the publisher, and had it been tried before a jury, he would probably also have been acquitted, as he was also ignorant of its publication. But he decided to assume the responsibility of the offense which had been, as may be termed, accidentally committed by employees, and was fined by the Court fifty dollars. There can be no doubt that a wrong had been done; but where a full apology is made by the responsible officers, as was done in this case, it is the general opinion of those qualified to speak, that it covered a full absolution of the offense, and should have been so received by both, as it was by one of the gentlemen mentioned.

The strong feeling in Germany against France has, according to the latest news, somewhat relaxed, and this is somewhat due to the great French fete day having passed off without any anti-German demonstrations. The French Government did all in its power to prevent any such demonstrations by keeping large numbers of troops under arms. The German Embassy was specially protected and a large body of
